Ethical and social

Sustainable thinking and working are an important part of our corporate philosophy. In addition to fair working conditions such as fair payment, social benefits and a safe working environment in our production facility, the Raw Hair is collected according to high ethical standards. The use of recyclable plastics and print products made from renewable paper and the Water treatment in production lead to another positive contribution to the environment.

Together we can create unique creations, perfectly tailored to your special needs. We design your wishes, no matter if for basic and master education or the perfect presentation of your brand.

Your brand – your education – our training head

FROM RAW HAIR TO A TRAINING HEAD

Sustainable and fair

The journey of our training heads starts in Indian and Chinese temples. There the owners donate their cherished and tended hair, mostly for religious reasons, voluntarily to the temple to thank their gods. At official auctions the Raw Hair gets collected by approved "hair dealers". With the revenues, the preservation of the temples is secured as well as funded charitable projects. Prices for Indian Temple Hair have increased by up to 20 times in the last 30 years and are one of the most valuable and expensive raw materials with prices up to 600 dollars per kilo.

After the Raw Hair arrives in our factory in China, the individual processing of the Hair begins. It is disinfected, washed with a sensitive shampoo, then brushed on a nail board and sorted in bundles according to color nuances and lengths. This is how we get our temple hair in Remi Quality, which is the prerequisite for a training head with Quality Hair.

In a special process - without destroying the cuticle layer - we slowly and gently dissolve the dark color pigments from our hair. In this way we preserve the natural shine and elasticity of the hair for our mannequin. After that the hair gets dyed to the desired target color, rinsed, receive their final treatment - without silicone - and gets air dried.

Afterwards the refined hair is implanted by hand in the still bald training head by our specially trained staff. This allows us to differentiate implanting -densities, -patterns and -directions as desired. After the manual make-up, the training heads gets their personal name and go through the final quality control before being put into reusable fabric bags – from recycled PET bottles - and packed in protective boxes, start their journey around the world. This is how our Uwe Damm training heads are made by hand in up to 48 hours - with a natural fall and vortex, backing style, curls, with shoulders and eyelashes – like a real client.

Our production facility is regularly audited by an independent company according to strict international ethical guidelines. However, we are not satisfied with adhering to them, fair working conditions and socially fair pay goes further for us. Our employees receive appropriate benefits and work in a clean and safe environment. Child labour is an absolute no-go for us.

We also attach great importance to the purification of the wastewater that arises during the processing of the Raw Hair. Combined with a leading waste recycling company, we are currently working on a sustainable disposal solution for no longer usable training heads.

HAIR DICTIONARY

We know that the success of our customers depends on the perfect hair. Therefor we process only the highest quality raw materials for our training heads. Regardless internationally uniform designations for hair types and hair qualities, there are crucial differences from supplier to supplier. With our hair dictionary we would like to offer you a general overview.

MIXHAIR
© Sizemith - AdobeStock

This is a synthetic fiber which is up to a certain point heat resistant. Visually, the fiber is clearly distinguishable from Human Hair. This hair type is also known as "eurotex" or as "biofiber". It is only conditionally suitable for cutting training and can't be permanently reshaped and colored.

We use for our training head Tuula 220g high quality Synthetic Hair, so it is especially for longhair beginners an inexpensive alternative.

This is a combination of synthetic and other types of hair. Refined horsehair can be used as well like Human Hair in all qualities. It is also up to a certain point heat resistant and can even be colored and reshaped to a limited extent, depending on the hair mixture. Mixhair is a cost-effective alternative for basic-cutting trainings.

For our training heads Tara and Tina, we use up to 150g Mixhair with a maximum proportion of 50% Synthetic Hair. So this two mannequins are a real cost-alternative.

The term "Realhair" is very common but says nothing about his indeed origin (human/animal), quality (Remy/non Remy, with/without cuticle) or ethics (dead/living human, forced/voluntary donor). It can be cut, colored, styled and shaped without problems.

We attach great importance on transparency and high quality in relation to our training heads. For our Realhair training heads Lisa, Andrea and Alina, we us a mix of Human Hair and high-quality refined horse hair. With them cutting-, coloring- and updotrainings without restrictions are possible.

With its round diameter of about 0.12 to 0.20 mm Chinese Human Hair is 3 to 5 times thicker than European Human Hair. It is mostly available in natural tones of black to dark brown and almost without self-movement available. Many suppliers peel the cuticle with acid off to obtain a lighter and thinner hair. With this process the structure gets damaged as well as the cuticle is removed. It represents a cheap alternative, which is excellent suitable for a wide range of applications.

On our training heads with Chinese Human Hair, we do not peel off the cuticle. We light up our hair in a slow gentle process and then colorize them on the desired target color.

Indian Human Hair has a round to slightly oval diameter and is approximately 0.08 to 0.12 mm thick. Therefor it is almost twice as thick as European Human Hair but has a similar self-movement. It is mostly in natural tones from black to brown available. Through its similarity to the European Human Hair it is excellent suited for all applications.

For our training heads with Indian Human Hair, we only process high-quality temple Raw Hair. With that are best cutting-, coloring- and styling-results possible.

The hair of the Tibetan highland Goat is not called "white gold" for nothing. The hair grows to a maximum of 35 cm hair length. It has in contrast to the Human Hair no natural color pigments and is therefore naturally pure white. They are perfectly suitable for pastel and creative colorations because there is no more bleaching necessary.

SYNTHETIC-AND MIXHAIR

Synthetic Hair is mostly made from textile fibers. As like other types of hair, there are also different price and quality classes. High-quality Synthetic Hair keeps for a long time their shine and smoothness. They are often even better than Realhair in low quality.

For our training heads with Mixhair, we use a mix of high-quality real- and Human Hair with a maximum of 50% Synthetic Hair.

100% HUMAN HAIR

For our training heads with Human Hair, we only use high-quality temple hair. We buy the Raw Hair at official auctions. A part of the incomes goes towards the upkeep of the temple, most of it goes to charitable institutions, schools, orphanages and clinics. This Compliance quota is strictly monitored and controlled. The collected Raw Hair will be separated in Bundles and sorted by length, then transported to our production facility in China. In a special treatment process the Raw Hair is washed, brushed, sorted by lengths and quality and further processed. The Hair for Uwe Damm training heads is brought with the Single-Drawn process to Remi Quality. An additional application of silicones is therefore not necessary.

Indian Human Hair

Indian Human Hair is round to slightly oval in diameter and is approximately 0.08 to 0.12 mm thick. This makes it twice as thick as European Human Hair, but it has a similar proper movement. It is usually available in natural tones from black to brown. Because of its similarity with the European Human Hair, it is best suited for all applications.

Chinese Human hair

In many parts of China donating their hair is a symbol of the transition to adult Life. The hair is cared until the age of 18, to be cut off in a traditional ceremony. With its round diameter of approximately 0.12 to 0.20mm, Chinese human hair is 3 to 5 times thicker than European Human Hair. It is mostly available in natural tones from black to dark brown and almost without any movement.
